Gas Strategies Interview: Stephan Kamphues, president of ENTSOG

With some of the most extensive gas distribution infrastructure in the world, Europe will continue to rely on gas-fired power for years to come – regardless of carbon-reduction policy or emerging "disruptive" technologies. Gas Strategies spoke to Stephan Kamphues, president of European transmission system operator (TSO) group ENTSOG and CEO of Germany's Open Grid Europe, to discuss the challenges facing gas grid operators in an ever-changing European policy landscape.
