Interview: Andree Stracke, chief commercial officer, gas supply and origination, RWE Supply & Trading

The LNG industry is going through a period of profound change, spearheaded by a rapid growth in supply from liquefaction projects in Australia and the US. As Europe's gas markets gear up for a mighty battle between US LNG and traditional pipeline suppliers, LNG Business Review talked to Andree Stracke, chief commercial officer, gas supply and origination, at RWE Supply & Trading, about the impact new supply could have on European gas hubs, the opportunities it could create for buyers and sellers, and its role in the evolution of pricing.
