BP brings WND project online eight months early

UK major BP has started gas production along with partner RWE Dea from its Western Nile Delta (WND) project, offshore Egypt, eight months ahead of schedule, with peak production from the project to hit 1.3 Bcf/day – equivalent to 30% of Egypt's current gas production.

BP has split the WND development into two separate projects in order to accelerate gas production to gas-starved Egypt, with the field partners having brought the first two of the five fields that make up the WND project online on March 24.
