Eni ships maiden LNG cargo from Jangkrik to Bali

Indonesia is set to receive its first shipment of locally produced LNG this week from the Jangkrik field situated in the island's deep waters of the Kutei Basin.

Italian major Eni said an LNG vessel carrying 22,500 cm of LNG set sail from the Bontang Liquefaction Plant in East Kalimantan on Thursday headed to Bali, where it will be supplied to state-owned Pertamina.

The shipment forms part of a long-term LNG contract ...
