Halcon refocuses on oil in Delaware after North Dakota shale sale

US shale producer Halcon Resources has agreed to sell all of its operated shale assets in the Williston basin of North Dakota to Bruin E&P Partners for USD 1.4 billion, with Halcon to shift its focus to the oil-rich Delaware shale play in Texas.

The deal will see Halcon divest assets producing approximately 29,000 boe/d, with Halcon having been entitled to 7,500 boe/d of the total.
