IGI Poseidon seeks EastMed gas pipeline EPCI bids even as project rationale fades

The Greek-Italian joint venture backing the EastMed gas pipeline this week went to tender for engineering, procurement, construction and installation (EPCI) work on the proposed 1,500 km subsea portion of the pipeline meant to connect the Levant Basin with Europe. IGI Poseidon hopes to reach a final investment decision (FID) in 2022, even though the economic basis for the project is weakening amid doubts [1]around ...
