‘Investment in gas will swing back to a realistic situation’: Mathios Rigas, Energean

East Med-focused Energean finds itself in a unique position within the oil and gas sector, both physically and structurally, as it utilises its size as a mid cap E&P player with big ambitions to invest in greenfield projects and leverage the growing potential of the region. Speaking to Gas Matters at the start of what he hopes to be a fortuitous 2024, Energean CEO Mathios Rigas highlights his company's position as a fairly risk-averse operator with growth “in our DNA” whose strategy is underpinned by long-term gas contracts resulting in a predictable cash flow.
