Gas Strategies Interview: Graeme Bethune, CEO of EnergyQuest

The start-up of three new Australian LNG plants in the space of a year has raised questions over the impact exports will have on the country's East Coast domestic market. Some sources suggest that local prices have already skyrocketed, spelling doom for domestic gas consumers – others argue that the impact has been very limited. Gas Matters caught up with Graeme Bethune, CEO of Australian energy consultancy Energy Quest, to discuss the most recent developments in the domestic gas market.
