Gas Strategies Interview: Kevin Ramnarine, former energy minister of Trinidad and Tobago

Trinidad is the world's sixth largest LNG exporter, but production from its only liquefaction facility – the four-train 15 mtpa Atlantic LNG plant – faces a gradual decline as reserves deplete. Gas Strategies caught up with Kevin Ramnarine, Trinidad and Tobago's (TT's) energy minister 2011 to 2015, to talk about his tenure and future outlook for Trinidad's gas production and LNG exports.
