Playing big: LNG portfolio players' market share grows as Europe's imports surge

[1]

Europe's surging LNG imports last year, which helped compensate for the loss of Russian pipeline gas supplies, underscored the growing role played by portfolio players on the LNG stage. Though, on the one hand, this has raised concerns about their increasing market powers, on the other, they continue to play a crucial part in ensuring supplies, while helping create the conditions for new import projects to be developed, industry players and experts tell LNG Business Review.
