Deals wrap: TotalEnergies, Saudi Aramco expand Asia presence, Poland gets first FSRU

This week saw supermajors expand their presence in Asia with Total Energy acquiring Malaysian oil and gas upstream company SapuraOMV and Saudi Aramco reportedly signing a deal with China's Rongsheng Petrochemical company.

Elsewhere, appetite for LNG trade remained strong with Hong Kong-based Wah Kwong shipping company finalising a deal to double its fleet of LNG carriers. Nautical deals continued with Japan's Mitsui O.S.K. Lines signing an agreement to supply Poland's first Floating Storage and Regasification Unit.

Here's a look at the deals that made the news this week:

TotalEnergies to take over Malaysia's SapuraOMV Upstream in $1.4bn acquisition [1]

TotalEnergies is building out its Malaysia presence with its latest acquisition of the remaining 50% stake in independent gas producer and operator SapuraOMV Upstream for USD 530 million. TotalEnergies will own 100% of the Malaysian company when the transaction goes ahead, subject to regulatory approvals.

Trident Energy acquires Congolese projects in deal with TotalEnergies, Chevron [1]

London-headquartered energy firm Trident Energy signed multiple agreements with TotalEnergies to simultaneously acquire an additional 53.5% working interest in the Nkossa and Nsoko II fields from TotalEnergies and divest a 10% working interest in the Moho-Bilondo field to TotalEnergies. Moho Nord is a vast project to produce untapped reserves in the Moho-Bilondo license block, which covers an area of 320 kilometers.

Mitsui inks deal with Gaz-System for Poland's first FSRU [2]

Japanese transport company Mitsui O.S.K. Lines has signed an agreement with Poland's natural gas transmission operator, Gaz-System to supply the country's first floating storage and regasification unit. Poland is among several European countries that have piled into national plans to strengthen energy security in the aftermath of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Billionaire Texas oilman Inks deal with Venezuela's state-run fuel giant [3]

As part of the deal announced on Wednesday, LNG Energy Group was awarded contracts by state-run PDVSA to take over production and develop two oil fields in eastern Venezuela which currently produce about 3,000 barrels of crude per day. LNG Energy Group is a publicly traded company listed in Canada that produces natural gas in Colombia. It was created last year as a result of a merger with a company owned by Rod Lewis, a legendary Texas wildcatter who Forbes Magazine once called the “only gringo allowed to drill in Mexico.”

Saudi Aramco signed a framework cooperation agreement with China's Rongsheng [4]

Saudi Aramco inked deals with China's Rongsheng Petrochemical Co. Ltd., to acquire 50% of Rongsheng's Ningbo Zhongjin Petrochemical unit, and Rongsheng Petrochemical to acquire 50% of Saudi Aramco Jubail Refinery Co. (SASREF), according to Saudi Arabia's financial news portal, Argaam.
